ABOUT THIS COURSE

Regardless of the industry sector a person works in and their job role, they are likely to be involved in problem solving for the most part of their workday.

Generating inventive solutions to problems is essential for most employees, and whilst problem solving comes naturally to some, others need to remind themselves of the best practices surrounding problem solving.

This short online training course explores the thinking process, helps the user to understand how to pinpoint problems, and how to apply outcome-based thinking.
